Leo M. Garonski represents Pennsylvania and New Jersey entrepreneurs and business entities regionally and internationally in a wide scope of commercial real estate business and transactions, including acquisitions, financing, and property business and development. He also assists clients with entity formation, contract negotiations, succession planning and the related field of estate planning.

In the real estate field, Mr. Garonski has provided legal services for acquisitions and multimillion dollar renovations such as historic Philadelphia Navy Yard building projects. He was involved in all phases of the project, including the selection of design and construction professionals, securing low-interest financing, as well tax abatement and federal tax credits approval. Leo's experience includes coordinating a client's management team, architects, construction management firms and other parties. Negotiating construction loan documents and related contracts, and serving as primary liaison with governmental authorities, are also services he offers clients.

He has managed and developed a family-owned property, converting eight acres from industrial to retail use for development of Home Depot and Target stores.

Leo handles significant contract and intellectual property matters, including license and service agreement negotiations, national distribution contracts, and joint ventures. Another example of Leo's work in the area of business transactions is assisting a client in a $70 million stock sale transaction and the preparation and review of related documentation.

Prior to opening his own firm, Leo was associated with Blank Rome Comisky & McCauley, a national law firm based in Philadelphia. Representing primarily financial institutions, his work involved business and commercial real estate transactions, and appearances before local planning and zoning boards.

Leo worked for Holiday Corp./Harrah's Hotels and Casinos before entering private practice, where he handled regulatory matters and real estate development projects in Atlantic City as well as special legal issues affecting Holiday Inns, Inc., Harrah's Marina and Trump Plaza hotel casinos.

For several years, Leo served as pro bono counsel and Board member for the non-profit Greater Philadelphia Cultural Alliance, which is comprised of 180 cultural nonprofit organizations in metropolitan area. Leo is a member of the Mercy Catholic Medical Center Board of Trustees, including oversight of Mercy Philadelphia Hospital and Mercy Fitzgerald Hospital. Leo also serves the Kimmel Center as part-time legal counsel on a pro bono basis.
